

AUSTRALIAN CAPITAL TERRITORY REMUNERATION TRIBUNAL

Statement Number 156

Special Magistrate – Appointment of Northern Territory Magistrate

Background

Section 10(1)(f) of the Remuneration Tribunal Act 1995 (the Act) provides authority for the Tribunal to determine remuneration and other entitlements for Magistrates.

The Department of Justice and Community Safety has written to the Tribunal requesting that an amendment be made to the existing Determination (Number 140) in relation to remuneration and entitlements in the situation where a Northern Territory Magistrate is appointed as a Special Magistrate in the ACT.

Tribunal Decision

The Tribunal has determined that where a Northern Territory Magistrate is appointed to the position of a Special Magistrate in the ACT, the Northern Territory Magistrate shall not be paid remuneration, allowances or entitlements for the period of appointment. That is, while the Northern Territory Magistrate is an ACT Special Magistrate the Northern Territory Magistrate will retain the Magistrate's existing Northern Territory Magistrate remuneration and entitlements.

The date of effect of the decision is 1 September 2004.
